

Women's Basketball

Varsity

The eighty-seven women's varsity basketball team had a fairly successful season considering their experience and the strength of the league. The members were equally divided between seniors and underclassmen, with the younger players seeing most of the action. The home opener was a stunning defeat of one of the council pre-season picks, Niskayuna. After that, wins were hard to come by until late in the season when their talent emerged. They showed the promise that was expected as they put together a season-ending win streak. The most important of these was a triple overtime road win over twice defeated Colonie. This enabled the team to make the Sectionals after a years' absence. Here they soundly defeated Troy in the first round, but fell to Suburban Council champion Shenendehowa in their next game to finish at 10-11 on the year.
